Take A Look At Your Software Training Specialists:

Mark Braun has been an active trader for over a decade. He specializes in using Fibonacci Time and Price relationships together with momentum indicators. For the past year, he has been teaching others to find high probability trading opportunities using these techniques. With a background in software development and education, he assisted with the addition of several analytical tools to the Fibonacci Trader software package. In addition to trading and private consultation, he is currently an analyst and chat room moderator for Carolyn Boroden's intraday trading advisory service.

Perry Madich started trading in the early 80's prior to PC's and hand charted many contracts while waiting for weekly printed charts to arrive. He has been doing technical analysis since very early in his career when he was the analyst for a momentum stock newsletter in the 90's. He has been part of beta testing of new software trading programs for several companies. Much of his time has been spent researching, creating and testing indicators and mechanical systems for trading. Perry has been the backup technical support person for Fibonacci Trader software.

Both specialists use Fibonacci Trader as their primary trading platform, and have extensive experience in assisting others to get the most out of the Fibonacci Trader software.

Through a combination of text, voice contact, and live graphic displays, you'll be instructed how to use Fibonacci Trader to meet YOUR trading needs. At your request, we can even customize the settings of your Fibonacci Trader program using our safe and secure connection.
